Racism

Face-negotiation theory: Face negotiation helps us to understand how people from different cultures manage rapport and disagreements. The face carries a message and situation. when we talk about something it remains in our head but when we do or happens in our life it stays in our hearts and we can feel them. This project helps us to feel the pain of racism. For this project we have to study black people's life and found for racism how much pain they have to feel for their skin color.

CI theme: Our theme was about racism, from childhood in movies or in real life, we found that people make fun or avoid people for their skin color, and body shape. but body color is not in our hands, it's a genetical thing but most people known or unknown make fun of those guys .Now days the percentage of racism is decrining and that's good but still it's not gone.

Our message: Black life matters you may be white, I may be black but the blood running in our veins is the same. we are living in 21 century but lots of people still divided humans by their skills and color, they behave rudely and make fun of their skin color, and create discrimination against their skin color. We just trying to send a message to society that skin can't be a human identity and we can be judged their education, skill, and knowledge by their skin color. we know about racism everyone is trying to say about it, we also tried in different ways by pathos through the mask.

Layout: We want to draw a black person's face, where he/she is crying and blood is getting out from the body. For black people, racism is continuing from the beginning. we want to send a message through pathos. we just want to make our mask with our feelings we haven't used any extra elements on the mask. we just make a mask with expression and color on it. we just focus to represent the message as simple but attractive, so that we also can send a message to the people that you just want to have a good idea and aim to represent your message. and we haven't written any messages on masks because those expressions own self-caring messages.

Painting and Installation: we paint our mask with watercolor and we mainly use black and red but we also have to use other colors a little bit for the mask paint. we use bandages to shape the mask and then we paint on it. we made lots of changes to the idea, pathos concept was new to us .me and my group member was not expert in making mask and painting but we tried our best to represent our message and we also have to add that the concept pathos was new to us. As we are not experts in making masks we have done lots of mistakes, we made more than 3 masks, the previous 2 masks were broken and were not in good shape according to our message and we were not experts in coloring so we have to get help from online and before applying on the mask we have to paint on paper to know the color combination. as our expectation and investing time on analyzing mask and paint we can't get the mask color according to our expectation but after lots of effort and mistake we have made it, and we also get confidence that in future we can make a good mask and good color combination.

Realization: Mask making process was new to us , frankly we tried a lot and our expectation was high ,and we also give lots of efforts for this project . Our main mistake was about pintaing ,we tired a lot to collaborate the colours but we failed according to our expectation . we laren and the learning willbe remain and hope so day by day it will improve us to do better.
Role of individual members our group members was so much excited and we all contributed as much as we can ,mask make by Rubayet and idea created rubayet and priyes , painting totally done by priyes .our each of group member plates there role and tried to do there best .

NO Racism

Conclusion:

This project helps us to understand and get to know lots of things about racism and also helps us to properly understand about pathos and we also apply those things.Racism is an elusive, emotional, and historically pervasive social fact. In modern society, problems previously viewed in the context of a historical legacy that includes involuntary slavery, constitutional denial of equal rights, legal support for second-class citizenship, and ubiquitous and various forms of physical, emotional, social, economic, and psychological exploitation and oppression of black people descent are now normalized as problems of equal opportunity for minorities. The term minority refers to a wide range of disadvantages associated with being different in a variety of ways, such as physical or mental disability, nonnormative sexual orientation, immigrant or refugee status, the elderly, chronic poverty, and ethnicity characterized by color.
